

We Don't Just Build Houses.

Build Your Team With Habitat for Humanity

Participating in Team Habitat is ideal for team building. Covered in dirt and drywall dust, with tools in hand, your team can expect an experience that will enable them to get to know each other in ways that conference room trainings simply can't offer.

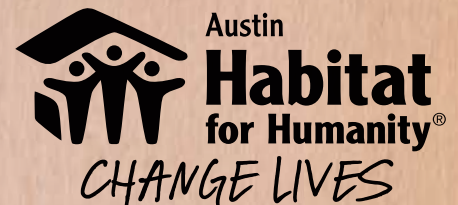

Team Habitat Sponsors are not only touched on a personal level by volunteering but also find that working with colleagues on the Habitat work site can make a difference in the way teams work together on a daily basis. As you take part in creating stability for a family, in turn, your team's stability will mirror that same transformation.

A Team Habitat sponsorship not only contributes to creating affordable housing but is also a worthy investment in the growth of your workplace.

$2,500

- One team building day with 20 volunteers on an Austin Habitat construction or home repair project
- Lunch provided
- Team Habitat T-shirts
- Photo opps

TEAM HABITAT

"Our firm continues to participate in Habitat because of the true sense of gratification everyone gets. It's a wonderful team building exercise, and there is a great feeling of satisfaction participating in a worthy cause. Habitat allows you to see the immediate progress you make on the home, as well as the difference a team approach makes in reaching a goal. I think employers strive to obtain that in the workplace and Austin Habitat accomplishes this every day!"

- Raymond Gray
Popp, Gray and Hutcheson, LLP

"Polycom works to bring people from all over the world together every day, but Team Habitat reminds us of the importance of bringing people together in our own back yard. Employees interact differently at a Team Habitat build than they do in their daily jobs because working in dirt and drywall dust requires different forms of communication than cubes and the water cooler. The experience allows everyone to return to the office with renewed relationships and a fresh perspective on their daily challenges."

- Erin Ryan, Polycom Employee and
Team Habitat Participant

To learn more about building your team with Austin Habitat for Humanity contact Julie Smith

Email: jasmith@ahfh.org
Phone: 512.472.8788 ext. 417
Fax: 512.476.1304

We Build Foundations for Teamwork.

Austin Habitat donations are tax-deductible as allowed by law and will be acknowledged with a letter you may use for those purposes. Since we take our responsibility to contributors and partner families seriously, your donation will be used carefully to best serve our community and organization.